

2-Day Foundations Seminar

Educators don't become culturally responsive as the result of one professional development experience. But you can begin to lay the foundation that creates a roadmap for becoming more responsive over time. Based on the bestselling book, Culturally Responsive Teaching and the Brain, this 2-day seminar is designed to help you understand how the various elements of culturally responsive practice work together to create the conditions for students to thrive and embrace rigor. Using the Ready for Rigor frame, we will explore the dispositions and practices that lay a foundation for being more responsive to diverse students who are under-performing.

8:30am – 3:30pm each day

Continental breakfast. Lunch on your own. Dinner and Lodging not included.

What You Can Expect:

We will focus on understanding how the core principles of culturally responsive teaching translate into mindsets and moves for both teachers and students. We will understand the neuroscience behind key practices that will allow us to adapt and customize them to various contexts or student demographics. We will bust misconceptions about CRT and think through key principles. We will anchor conceptual knowledge in hands-on, experiential activities.

Learning Outcomes

- Discover the critical connections between student learning, culturally responsive practices and neuroscience that allows you to customize CRT strategies.
- Identify your current mindset and moves so that you know what needs to change in your classroom or school.
- Practice core moves in the four areas of the Ready for Rigor framework
- Create a “playbook” of teaching strategies, student cognitive routines, and formative assessment structures.

Who Should Attend?

- Educators who have done previous equity work (i.e., Cultural Proficiency, Beyond Diversity, etc.) and are seeking to translate their awareness into classroom practices.
- Instructional coaches who want to build a foundational understanding of the components of culturally responsiveness
- Leaders who need to build their background knowledge and understanding of culturally responsive practices as a strategic move toward meeting equity goals.

Note: This isn't a “train the trainer” workshop. It is not designed for professional developers who wish to bring “strategies” back to their staff. It is for professional developers who are building their own personal knowledge and capacity.
